What is a listserv?

A listserv is a way to share information via electronic mail with many people, usually on a specific topic or for a specific purpose. Generally, people choose to be part of a mailing list by subscribing to the list.

How does the Managed Long-Term Care listserv work?

DHFS sends a message to a single e-mail address (managedltc@dhfs.state.wi.us) which is automatically distributed, or “broadcast” to all of the people subscribed to the list. Everyone who is a subscriber will receive the message. The Managed Long-Term Care list is moderated, meaning that subscribers will not be able to post messages to the entire listserv. This will reduce excessive e-mails to your mailbox.
